In “Zenato ‘Alanera’ Rosso Veronese, Italy,” Jeff Anderson highlights ZENATO Alanera Rosso Veronese (No Vintage Listed) for his guest column, “Wine Pick.” He calls it “a fantastic red,” and says that Alanera is kind of a “baby Amarone” in regards to how the wine is made. He suggests pairing it with braised short ribs, pot roast, pork tenderloin in hoisin, or steak canapes with havarti.

His review below:

“Aromas of strawberries, coffee and tobacco notes fill the glass, Superb flavors of dried cherries, black plums, spice and hints of pepper coat the palate with a velvety texture. The wine has a nice long finish with a medium body style. Excellent wine at a great price!”
